Salterio Hog Nosed

Producto nº

210

There are numerous medieval illustrations of plucked psalteries with this characteristic "pig snout" shape. They were popular through the Renaissance and Baroque periods. This simple replica has been designed to permit easy decoration with 3-1/4" laser cut rosettes, available as an extra option. The kit already has a large round hole drilled in the center of the soundboard. Great tone and volume, can be used for performing.

15 strings, 28" long, 10" wide, 2 octaves.

Salterio Plucked

Psaltery - Plucked

The psaltery (the name coming from the Greek word 'Psalterion') probably filtered into Europe from the Near East during the crusades. Illustrations dating from the 12th century onwards depict the instrument in many different forms but the most commonly depicted trapezoidal shape with in curved sides, often called a 'snout-nosed' psaltery.

We have kept to this traditional shape for this Plucked Psaltery. Swiss pine on an English sicomoro framework is hand finished and then strung in brass to ensure a full tone from the instrument. Tuned to a diatonic scale of three octaves G - a" it is most commonly played resting on the lap with a quill. Each instrument comes complete with a tuning lever, soft carrying case and 12 month warranty.

Psaltery - Plucked kit

Our Plucked Psaltery Kit is a trapezoidal shape with in-curved sides, often called a 'snout-nosed' psaltery. All the main constructional parts are supplied cut to size from traditional timbers and are ready for final assembly working to the template provided. The template also shows the builder where to drill the holes for the hitch pins and tuning pins and where to fit the correct gauges of brass wire. The instruction manual adopts a 'step by step' approach to guide the builder through each stage of construction explains how to tune and play the instrument to a diatonic scale of three octaves G - a".
