Guitarra DREADNOUGHT

Producto nº

158

The Dreadnought guitar is patterned after the Martin full-body instruments that have set the standard for a sound for generations. You'll love the sound of this handmade instrument. The spruce soundboards are custom laminated with three layers of Sit Spruce, no junk core. This material is stronger than solid spruce, yet thinner than most soundboards, so it sounds great without the risk of cracking, regardless of climate variations.

You can build this guitar at home with just ordinary hand tools. It has designed it to be easy to assemble, especially where the neck joins the body. The sides are pre-bend and the fret slots are pre-cut. You'll need a few c-clamps and a bunch of clothespins for gluing. If you wish to add edge binding you will need a router with sharp straight bit (instructions included). It finishes off to be a fine guitar, easily worth two or three times the cost of the kit.

Guitarra RENAISSANCE

Though not an accurate historical replica, this guitar is great for period festivals & events. People love the looks and sound of this instrument with the pear-shaped body and sharply angled peghead. The large soundchamber puts out excellent so with either steel or nylon strings. An adjustable truss rod in the neck helps you set the string action just the way you like, and keep it there from year to year.

Designed with a pear-shaped body and angular peghead for that early music flair. Optional decorations available for enhancing this instrument. We let you choose how many of the "extras" you want to purchase. We normally offer these guitars with steel strings for the brightest and fullest sound. But this guitar works very well with classical (nylon) strings too. Nylon strings are easier on the fingers if you are a beginning player, and they produce a softer, more mellow sound. Instructions include lots of illustrations to make each step clear. With careful attention, you'll build a beautiful instrument. The neck is already shaped for you, and the sides are easy to bend under hot running water. There is even an adjustable truss rod to keep the neck from warping.

Strings:6 strings, steel or nylon
Woods:Mahogany neck, walnut fingerboard, laminated walnut/cherry sides & back, laminated spruce front
Dimensions:38" long, 15" wide
Weight:3 1/2 lbs

Laminated spruce front, Laminated walnut/cherry sides & back, Mahogany neck, Walnut fingerboard 38" long, 15" wide weighs only 3-1/2 lbs.

Designed this guitar to be assembled much like a mountain dulcimer, with sides that fit into slots in the heel of the neck. It comes with a generous neck width (about 2" wide at the nut) for classical players, but it can easily be trimmed narrower for standard steel string playing.
