Canoa OSPREY

Producto nº

492

It is what I perceive to be the ideal small solo canoe for Canadian wilderness travel. The designed displacement is adequate for a large paddler on a week long trip, or smaller paddler for longer trips. Unlike most American solos, this boat is heavily rockered forward with slightly less aft. The combination provides good maneuverability in smaller streams and excellent tracking on open water.

Despite its relatively low freeboard, it is a dry boat and the sculpted tumblehome midships allows good stroke mechanics despite the boat's 30 inch maximum beam.

14'10"
Osprey Dimensions
Overall Length 14'10"
Waterline Length 14'-2.5"
Max. Beam 30"
Waterline Beam 27 1/4"
Draft 3.2"
Bow Rocker 1.73"
Stern Rocker 0.82"
Designed Load 283 lbs.

Canoa OXFORD

Producto nº

520

It is designed for novice and intermediate oarsman.

It is a swift, smooth running "recreational" shell suitable for all skill levels. The narrow hard-chine hull provides speed and good initial stability in a shape that's to build. Whether you're just learning how to row a sliding seat shell, or you're a seasoned expert looking for a handsome exercise boat, it has the performance you want.

Its weight is kept to a minimum with 3mm okoume in the sides and deck. 4mm pan on the bottom and fiberglass on the entire hull assure strength and durability in beach landings (or parking lot incidents!). The handsome 6mm okoume coamings sufficiently tall to protect the cockpit in chop up to 12". A removable aluminum ski is standard in the kit.

Length: 20' 6", Beam: 22",
Weight: 39 lbs. (unrigged)

The kit includes: Plans, instructions, pre-cut parts, bulkheads, epoxy, fiberglass hull, fit kit for sliding seat unit.

Arguably the best sliding seat unit in the sport, the Piantedosi's monorail design is simple, elegant, and stiff, with an exceptionally smooth feel. Supplied with Concept 2 oarlocks. The popularity of this design has a downside: the manufacturer has a hard time keeping up with orders. We buy every unit we can get our hands on but expect a wait of up to eight weeks.

Canoa Prospector

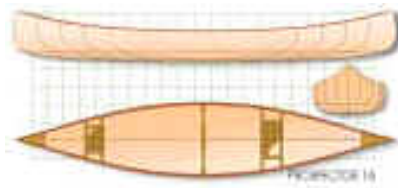

Producto nº

480

A workhorse

The Prospector features a flattened, shallow arch hull with its fullness carried into the bow and stern, good depth amidships to maintain freeboard and deepened ends to keep paddlers and gear dry.

The rockered keel-line makes it very maneuverable in whitewater. This was the favorite of the late Bill Mason, Canada's premier paddler. It is amazing that such a large-volume tripping canoe can also be so beautiful to paddle solo in the leaned position - canoe ballet, as I call it. It is the ideal all-round canoe.

Built to meet the specific needs of the prospector - good maneuverability through whitewater and wilderness, with capacity to carry substantial loads.

Canoa Red bird

Producto nº

This design is an efficient wilderness canoe that has proven exceptionally seaworthy even in heavy seas. Its keeless shallow-arch hull with moderate rocker combines with a long waterline and fine entry to make it a fast responsive boat. The sides have a moderate tumblehome for lateral strength and to allow outwales wide enough to take aside waves and spray.

Canoa Rob Roy

Producto nº

474

Efficient cruising canoe.

Propelled with a double blade paddle from a sitting position and often rigged for racing. Until the early 1900's, American recreational canoeing was dominated by the double blade canoe. This hull design has been built in many versions, from a simple lightweight fast cruising canoe, to a full decked version of bookmatched walnut veneer with sliding seat, foot rest, floorboards and hand rubbed varnish. There are many possibilities of how this canoe may be trimmed and fit out.

A dream!

This is a wonderful canoe to explore those quiet backwaters and be by ythissself. A good tracking solo canoe with the stability to use as a fishing platform or for natu observation. The light weight of this canoe make it a joy to portage. The light-weic of this canoe also makes the handling characteristics extremely good for this solc canoe, even on windy lakes. While the Solo Portage is intended to be a solo cano has the carrying capacity to be set up as a tandem canoe if you wish.

Canoa Wee Robbie

Producto nº

471

For the fisherman or explorers it's an easy boat to get to those seemingly inaccessible ponds. Or it's just that little ready to go boat for a local moonlight paddle.

This boat style is called a double paddle canoe, because it is paddled with a kayak paddle, in a seated position. At 17 lbs. , this is the ideal boat for a small person or someone who just doesn't want to hurt themselves lifting a heavy boat. It can handle up to 250 lbs. with ease. It can also be set up to accommodate two children quite comfortably. The bow and stern is built with air tanks, for extra flotation and small decks with a built-in hand hold for carrying. A broad flattened sculpted thwart is standard back rest.

Canoa Winisk

Producto nº

488

A serious tripping canoe

It can carry up to 580 pounds and still be fast and maneuverable. Experienced trippers appreciate speed but not the kind that requires hard work. They want a canoe that can cruise at better than six or seven kilometres per hour at normal paddling rates but still have more speed in reserve in emergencies.

It is a true multi-purpose canoe. For families with children or those who prefer the security and stability of a larger canoe, the Winisk is the logical choice. It has the speed and secure feel essential for tripping with children, yet rewards the enthusiastic paddler with a rare combination of beauty and performance.

Canoa FREEDOM 15

Producto nº

440

This canoe features an asymmetrical hull with a fine bow and slightly fuller stern. mid section has mild tumblehome for comfortable solo paddling and good structural rigidity.

A small canoe has an easier time turning corners and needs some design features aid with straight-line tracking.

It has less rocker and deeper aft sections for effortless steering. The 35" beam gives it a stability factor of 104 which means it will give confidence to those on board, a yet be a pleasure to paddle.

We see it on lakes, rivers, and portages being used for camping, day trips, fishing just playing around.
